

SAN BERNARDINO.

MRS. MATTIE PENMAN ON TRIAL FOR HER LIFE.

Continuation of the Trial—Copious testimony for the defense—The defendant herself on the stand—Her straightforward story.

SAN BERNARDINO, June 21.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] Court opened here this morning at 9 o'clock, in the case of the People vs. Mattie Penman, accused of murdering the old dancing-master, Alfred Sullivan. As on yesterday, the courtroom was packed with an eager crowd, among whom were several ladies. This is defendant's day, and the first witness called was Judge C. W. C. Howell, recently appointed Judge of Department No. 1 Superior Court of this county. He had known the defendant for many years, during most of which time he had been her legal adviser. Saw her the evening before the shooting at his residence in a very excited state of mind. She told him that a man by the name of Sullivan had tampered with her child, and she wanted him arrested and punished. Witness inquired into the circumstances of the case and then advised her to see the District Attorney about the matter. She then left, seemingly dissatisfied with his advice.

Dr. D. R. Dickey, a physician of this city, testified that he had been called up to Mrs. Penman's room to examine a child on a little girl. Found the child in bed, and on inspection had found inflammation caused by some foreign substance, but as no serious damage had been done, he advised the mother to say nothing about it. Had found the defendant in a state of great mental excitement. Child had said to witness that "that old man hurt me," and when asked "How did he hurt you?" she answered "With his hands—he hurt me with his hands."

The next witness was Mrs. Julia Patterson, who testified to calling on the defendant the evening before the shooting and found her intensely excited, and on being informed of what had happened, she went to the little girl, and the baby had said to her, "You will not let that old man hurt me," and when asked "How did he hurt you?" she answered "With his hands—he hurt me with his hands."

Judge Gregg of the firm of Harris & Gregg testified to having heard three shots on Sunday morning, April 28th, from his office at corner of Third and D streets, and soon after saw defendant, in company with an officer, coming in the direction where he was sitting, and observed the excited expression of defendant's face and eyes.

Judge Willis of counsel for defense then took the witness stand, and testified to having seen her just prior to the shooting, and that she looked very different from her usual manner, and he thought, mentally greatly excited.

E. E. Rowell, attorney, testified to having met defendant the evening prior to the shooting, when she had inquired for his father, had known her for many years, and never saw her in so excited a frame of mind.

John Beem testified to a slight acquaintance with defendant. The evening before the shooting witness was standing near Sullivan's room, on Third street, when defendant came downstairs from her room, calling for her child. Witness spoke to her and said, "Your little girl went in there (pointing to Sullivan's room) and saw the old man, and saw how he hurt her."

ness accosted deceased and accused him in Clark's presence of debauching her child. Sullivan answered: "I don't know what you are talking about," and she said: "Yes, you do; you took my baby into your den to ruin her," and he said again: "I don't know what you mean." She then went to Capt. Howell and told him what had happened. On her return she met some friends, who suggested to her to have an examination by a physician, and she called Dr. D. R. Dickey, and he made the examination, and told her that there was no serious injury she had done. The Literary Committee reported that the following selections had been agreed upon to date: President of the day, Col. G. Wiley Wells; orator, Gen. H. G. Rollins; reader of the Declaration of Independence, David Deelman; grand marshal, Capt. A. W. Barrett; chief of staff, Capt. A. W. Thornton; poet, G. G. Tomner of Pomona; opening prayer, Rev. J. J. Blum of Los Angeles. It is probable that some other features will be added in the way of songs, etc., and the participants, as selected, will be duly announced.

Mr. Wilson, the local fireworks man, appeared before the committee and submitted a number of designs, which were discussed at some length. Mr. Gephart stated that several firms had refused to contribute anything for the celebration, while others in the same line had done so, and he suggested that, should the committee need anything, it patronize those who had helped them out.

Capt. Barrett said that he had sent an invitation to all the civic associations and trade organizations to take part in the parade, as well as the military, and he thought that there would be a good turnout. The line of march would probably be from Fourth and Main, up to the Plaza, and down Spring street. The procession would start promptly at 11 o'clock, at which hour everybody that intended to take part should be in line.

The committee then adjourned to Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock. It is especially desired by the committee that business men should decorate their buildings along the line of march, and to encourage this, a good display the Executive Committee has determined to give a gold medal, valued at $25, to the business house making the most elaborate display, the judges to be the members of the press on the Grand Marshal's staff.

NORMAN, THE SHOOTER.

Ho Changes Attorneys and Gets a Continuance.

The case of Norman, the legless Lohr, who shot and wounded a young man named Bertrand, at the Home Mansion, on Fifth street, a day or two ago, because he had alienated the affections of a frail dame with whom he had been living, came up before Police Justice Owens yesterday afternoon. Norman had engaged Henry Gage, Esq., as his attorney, but when that gentleman came into court and found that his client had concluded to plead the "poverty dodge," he declined to take his case, and withdrew. Mr. Caron took his place as counsel, when a motion for a continuance was made, and granted, Tuesday afternoon next at 2 o'clock being fixed for the case.

W. A. Yale had known the dancing-master for many years; had heard him say that he meant to visit his folks before long; that shortly before the shooting.

Drs. René and Baylis recalled for prosecution, and testified that they had made an examination of the child at the instance of the District Attorney, on the day Sullivan was shot, and that they did not find any evidence that any serious damage had been done to the child, but that a slight abrasion, under proper care, might have been obliterated before they made the examination.

Here the prosecution and defense each rested, and promised to hand the Court their instructions by 5 o'clock p.m., and so, at 2:30, the court took a recess until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The American Derby will be run at Chicago today, and a good field of horses will go to the post. Spokane, on his running in the Kentucky Derby, which he defeated Proctor Knott by a short head, and his subsequent success in the Clark stakes, is deservedly favorite, but it is doubtful whether he will be able to carry his three-pound penalty.

The struggle between him and Proctor Knott will be a close one, and good reports are at hand as to the excellent condition of McCarty's sorrel colt Sorrento. If Sorrento has improved as much as his owner claims since his head defeat by The Czar in the Pacific Derby, he ought to be there or thereabouts in today's race, and they will probably finish as follows: Sorrento, 1; Proctor Knott, 2; Spokane, 3.

THE FOURTH.

Meeting of the Executive Committee.

The Fourth of July Executive Committee met last evening in the headquarters in the Union League rooms, with Mayor Hazard and the following members present: Thomas A. Lewis, J. C. Robinson, George Gephart, Capt. A. W. Barrett, Dan Moriarty and Joe Bayer.

After some discussion on music, Joe Mesmer was appointed a committee of one to act with the grand marshal and make the necessary arrangements with the bands.

The Literary Committee reported that the following selections had been agreed upon to date: President of the day, Col. G. Wiley Wells; orator, Gen. H. G. California on Wheels—The Traveling Show Reaches Jersey and Will Soon Come Home.

By Telegraph to The Times.

TUCSON (Ariz.), June 21.—[By the Associated Press.] Word has been received of the total destruction of the village of Quijotos, 90 miles southwest of here, by fire. Not a building of any consequence escaped. Stores, saloons, restaurants, lodging-houses, all were destroyed. Owing to the extremely dry weather and no water supply, save by watercarts, the fire was irresistible. As the camp had not been very brisk during the last two years, property had greatly depreciated. The cost of construction of the district burned was about $50,000.

H. J. Sowers and Verdugo, merchants, lost about $200 each. J. B. Williams, saloon, and Mrs. Stewart, restaurant and hotel, were the principal losers. There is very little insurance.

As all provisions were destroyed a supply was at once sent from this place.

Quijotos is the camp of the Peor, Feeles, Crocker and Locomotive mining companies.

CALIFORNIA ON WHEELS.

The Great Travelling Exhibit Reaches New Jersey.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—[By the Associated Press.] A special from New York says: The cars known as "California on Wheels" arrived at Jersey City tonight. The press reception will begin there tomorrow, to which representatives of the press of New York, Brooklyn and New Jersey are invited. It is now six months since the cars left California. In that time 200 places, great and small, have been visited. It is possible that after the exhibition has been some days at Jersey City it will be removed to the Grand Central depot in this city. From here the cars will go to Cincinnati, Columbus and Chicago, then directly home from Chicago.

Keeping tally by the number of souvenir maps given out, there have been over 400,000 visitors. The favorable notices received would fill a large volume. It is impossible to estimate the amount of good advertising has accomplished. The greatest popular interest manifested so far was through Iowa and Nebraska. Great interest was also manifested in Massachusetts and Connecticut. Everywhere eager inquiries are made concerning California. The cars will probably reach California in August.

THE WINEMAKERS.

A Scheme to Make Their Industry Pay Better.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—[By the Associated Press.] A committee, consisting of Apod Harashty, L. de Turk and Herman Bendel, held a meeting today, and took the initial steps toward interesting capitalists in the distillation of brandy from the inferior grades of wine flooding the market. After the meeting, Harashty said the particulars of the meeting could not be disclosed, but that if the plans adopted can be carried out, the prices of wines will immediately rise to a paying standard.

It is absolutely painful," said he, "to hear growers offer to sell their wine at the price of water. It is a disgrace to the dealer, but when the wine is so cheap, the dealer is forced to take it at that price. The market for the remainder of the year is good. However, the scheme will require at least a million dollars, and I would not think of beginning to do it until the prospects of obtaining the money are favorable."

A DOUBLE CRIME.

A Santa Barbara Man Shoots a Woman and Suicide.

SANTA BARBARA, June 21.—[By the Associated Press.] This morning J. B. Henderson, a young man about 25 years of age, shot his landlady, Mrs. Andonagui, in the breast, and then committed suicide by shooting himself in the mouth. Henderson had been drinking, and was locked up yesterday for drunkenness, and it is supposed that the quarrel arose between himself and his landlady on this account, he accusing her of having him arrested. Death followed instantly in his case.

It is reported that Henderson wished to marry Mrs. Andonagui, but she declined his suit on the ground of having a husband living in Ensenada, who left her some years ago, although they were never legally separated. The lady's physician says she will recover from the effects of the wound.

TRIED FOR HIS LIFE.

An Interesting Murder Case at Portland, Or.

PORTLAND (Or.), June 21.—[By the Associated Press.] Great interest is felt in the trial of "Sandy" Olds for the murder of Emil Weber. Testimony for the defense commenced this afternoon, and will probably close early this evening. The testimony shows that Weber was threatened against Olds's life, but none had been communicated to Olds.

The testimony for the prosecution makes the case look very dark for Olds. The prisoner during the trial manifests a good deal of nervousness, and he watches the proceedings with great interest. The general impression prevails for some reason that Olds will be convicted only of murder in the second degree. Great efforts are being made to save the prisoner from a death verdict.

SUSAND, THE BARBER.

Attacked by a Rather Peculiar Malady.

O. L. Susand, the main-street barber, was brought to the police station yesterday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock apparently suffering from an attack of melancholia mania. The officer on the beat noticed him standing in front of Heinzenman's drug store for an hour or two before he said anything to him, but finally seeing that he did not move he went up to him, and was surprised to find him to all appearances fast asleep. He shook him, but could not arouse the man, when the patrol wagon was sent for and he was taken to the station. Police Surgeon Morrison was called in and made an examination, but could not at first diagnose the case, but thought that Susand had taken poison. The usual tests, however, showed that this was not the case, and the mania theory was advanced. Nothing was found in Susand's possession but a couple of powders containing about 10 grains of anti-venereal drug, which was apparently he had been taking for Susand was afterward removed to his residence, where he will receive medical attention, which will result in his recovery.

Old resident, having over 15 or 20 years, and at that time he had a wife, is supposed to be a mulatto, and is a native of Canada.

FEMALE SHARPS.

How They Fill the Places of the Bunco Men.

Since the male bunco steers were frightened out of seven years' growth by the denouement of the Haskins case, they have put female chums forward, and from all appearances the city is being worked in a systematic style that would belitt a Chicago panel game.

It is a fact that a bunco stealer generally travels with a female companion who is 100 per cent. sharper than her male pal. When the man has a chance to do his work undisturbed, the woman keeps in the background and plays the fine lady. She generally lives at one of the first-class hotels, and is seldom if ever seen with the male robber.

The two meet in secret, and the woman gives her pal such information as she thinks will assist him in gathering in his succors. She makes it a point to get acquainted with all the women about the hotel, and as she has all the ways of a refined lady on her fingers' tips, it does not take her long to win their confidence, and before the unsuspecting victim knows what is going on, the female robber has gained all the information her male pal needs in his scheme to rob the husband, lover or son of the woman who has been pumped. This is the way these female robbers work when the skies are clear, and there are no peace officers on the track of the thieves, but when stormy times come the male robber crawls into his hole, and the female bobs up serenely.

As was remarked above, this female accessory has taken the field against the gulls of Los Angeles since the arrest of the Rose gang, and she is drawing into her net all kinds of folk from the buttermilk-brained dude to the cool-headed business man who has a weak place in his heart for the fair sex. In common parlance, these women are not bunco steers, but blackmailers, and as they dress well, are pretty, and possess many fascinating ways, it is not at all surprising that they wield a wonderful influence over many men who ought to know better.

A detective who has been employed in several of these cases lately said to a Times reporter yesterday: "While we know that these women are carrying on their crooked business, it is not for the purpose of putting them in jail, for the reason that their foot victims will not stand in and prosecute them. Why do the victims employ us? For various reasons, but the principal reason is to stop the blackmailing process. When one of these women gets the deadwood on a well-to-do man she never lets go unless she is frightened off, and the victims know that a detective can do more with these blackmailers than any one else. The goal also wants to keep the story of his shame from his family's ears, and his head is level on this subject, for if all these stories were made public the wheels of the divorce court would be kept in motion all the time. Their victims as a rule are among married men, and the way they work some of these poor devils would make an angel of darkness weep."

These female bunco sharps are to be found in many of the lodging-houses in the fashionable part of town, and to see them on the street one would take them for fashionable ladies of the most modern type. They are the street angels almost every afternoon, and if they do not get acquainted with some sucker who can be worked they think the day has been lost. It is not known whether the police are on the track of these fair devils or not, but they are not in a time for them to put on their paint and thin the city out.

The New Line to Santa Monica. The Los Angeles and Pacific Railway Company is making most excellent arrangements for handling the crowds who go over its road on Sundays to Santa Monica. By the new time-table going into effect, commencing tomorrow, the 23d inst., trains leave the depot, corner Beaudry and Bellevue avenues, on Sundays for Santa Monica, at 9, 10 and 11:20 in the forenoon, and at 1:30, 4:35 and 6 in the afternoon. The afternoon trains on Sundays from Santa Monica will leave at 3:30, 4:30 and 6:15. This is undoubtedly the most accommodating time-card ever given Sunday visitors to Santa Monica.

Another very accommodating feature of the company's arrangements is the opening of its ticket office at 44 North Spring street on Sundays from 8 o'clock a.m. to 1:30 p.m., where tickets will be sold, and backs and carryalls will be on hand to carry passengers direct to the depot. These conveyances will leave 20 minutes before the hours advertised for departure of trains, and the charge from office to depot will be only 5 cents.

The new road is evidently in the field for business, and as its many attractions and beautiful scenery become better known, there is no doubt but they will carry immense crowds every Sunday for the balance of the summer season.

New Suits.

Suit was brought yesterday by the City of Los Angeles vs. Francois Douillard, Charles Hahn and Bernia Hahn for the possession of certain land for a street, entered upon and in their possession.

The Schaller-Ganahl Lumber Company brought suit against Thomas G. Rogers and Isaac B. Newton on a promissory note for $1500.

Suit was brought by Eliza Millard vs. Z. Decker et al., on promissory notes, $4488 of which are unpaid.

REV. DOWIE

POSING AS A MARTYR AND STRIKING LIKE A "PUG."

He Pays His Sanctified Respects to "The Times" and Some Other City Papers, and Demolishes the Arguments of Dr. Widney and Rev. Mr. Williams.

The Rev. John Alexander Dowie, at the Pavilion last night, paid his respects to THE TIMES and divers and sundry persons who have ventured to disagree with him in his methods of trying to create a boom in faith healing. It is remarkable were addressed to a large audience, nearly all the seats below being filled; and his language to say the least, was impolite. He started out by saying that he proposed to wipe up the floor, metaphorically speaking, with that filthy sheet, THE TIMES, and, incidentally, the Tribune; also the Christian Advocate, Dr. J. P. Widney, Rev. Mr. Williams and Mr. Andrews, the author of the letter published in THE TIMES referring to his Australian career. He then proceeded to speak with this array for his first mouthful, and said he was glad that he could class himself with John Knox—not being afraid to face any man. He felt it to be a glorious thing that he could say to his large audience that he had not only friends in Los Angeles, but adversaries.

"I shan't begin with Mr. Williams," he said, with a wave of his hands and snap of his foot, "I'll finish with him. We have a few trifles to deal with first, before we come to the roast beef. [Laughter.] I'm sorry the roast beef is tainted. I'll begin with the press, and first of all THE TIMES. One of our poets has said: 'Knowledge of good and evil we have from thee.' I agree with him, that is true. And from THE TIMES we have wholly evil. It must have been born speaking lies."

"While we were speaking in the Temperance Temple," he continued, "this purveyor of stinking news was too busy to find out we were speaking for a whole month. It was too busy gathering every foul, dirty, stinking, filthy story to give a place for our word."

Pausing for a moment to wipe his head, Mr. Dowie ejaculated: "This paper is a wilful hypocrite of the truth. As he hurled this anathema at the church, he turned to the ladies and gentlemen who filled the stage, with an expression as much as to say: 'You see how I fix 'em.'"

"I shan't take up much time with the Tribune. All I have said will apply to it."

Mr. Dowie read the letter published in THE TIMES, in which the writer intimated that he (Dowie) had had trouble in Australia in the church, and was in jail, and said that in reading it the impression he had was that Rome is howling through THE TIMES. "Scratch THE TIMES," said he, "and you'll find Rome, rum and infidelity. I did make Rome howl in Australia, and I'll fight Rome and rum as long as I live."

He read from a pamphlet which he said he had published in Australia in answer to the same charges. His reading consisted of resolutions, he said the stewards of the church passed, giving him God speed and as great success as he had had in the church. He said that he had been in prison in Australia, and explained that he had been imprisoned through the street in street preaching, until finally the Council passed an ordinance prohibiting it. He kept right on, preferring to obey God rather than man, and was put in prison, where he remained 30 days. When he came out he went at it again, and went to prison again, and was pardoned out. He denied having taken any money from the wife of the minister whose place he took, and said he gave her more than 50 per cent. of what he was entitled to.

Mr. Dowie then gave his autobiography, relating the course of his ministry in Australia, and characterized THE TIMES as the publisher of an infamous lie, saying that the article had been written by a man of whom all he could find out was that he was a night watchman in a cannery factory at Colton.

"Ah, Mr. Otis-Times," he said, to Santa Monica, "we'll have some tough matters before we get through. That my tabernacle was attached to a lie, and I demand that THE TIMES publish my answer."

He then showed a book, which he said was an address from his church, complimenting him on his work, and said: "I'll let THE TIMES see it, on condition that they keep their dirty fingers off of it."

"When did I ever say I healed any one?" he asked, waving his arms and pacing back and forth before the footlights. "Did I, sister? Are you cured by me or Jesus of that rheumatism? Did I, sister? Were you cured by me or Jesus of that rheumatism?"

Mr. Dowie then had all stand up who thought he had answered the charges, and nearly all stood up. And then all who thought he had not were invited to stand up, and none stood up.

He went on to discuss Dr. Widney, who had an article in the Christian Advocate about the apostle Matthew, and said the conference ought to repudiate both the editor and Dr. Widney. He accused them of having asserted that Matthew had erred, and went on at a great rate about their limited scholarship and lack of faith, saying that Dr. Widney and the Christian Advocate are the first men to propound the idea that Matthew made a mistake.

Of Rev. Mr. Williams he said that he had a devil in him that he would like to kick out. This was in reference to Mr. Williams's published article, "Divine Healing a Delusion." He took up the article, section by section, and declaimed and raved up, and down the stage about the futile attempts of Mr. Williams to advance any arguments that could stand against his theories.

The speech of Mr. Dowie was characterized by rambling in thought and coarseness in expression. He spoke for three hours, and when about half through people began to go out, until at the close about two-thirds of the audience he started with was gone.

HEART FAILURE.

Sudden Death of Andrew P. Morgan. Andrew P. Morgan, a harness maker, aged 48 years, died suddenly at his residence, No. 306 Macy street, yesterday morning, under peculiarly distressing circumstances. Mr. Morgan has been in bad health, suffering from rheumatism, for some time past, but went to work yesterday morning at Osborn's shop, at the corner of Aliso and Alameda streets, where he was employed, as usual. About 9 o'clock he began to complain about feeling badly, and said that he would have to go home. A friend came by in a buggy about that time, and he started off with him, but did not go far when he became unconscious. On arriving at his home he was put to bed, and Dr. Nadeau called in, who found him in a state of collapse. The usual remedies were applied, but he could not be revived, and died about 11 o'clock.

Coroner Meredith was notified, and held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of death from natural causes, probably failure of heart action. Mr. Morgan leaves a widow and three little children to mourn his loss.

A VIGOROUS KICK.

A Merchant's Wife the Bone of Contention. A Denunciation. A well known merchant who has been greatly benefited by Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, directed to give it to his wife, who was very delicate, but out of caution first consulted his physician Dr. W. H. Griswold of 850 Market street. The doctor, who is one of our leading practitioners, objected, saying he had never seen a sarsaparilla that did not contain potash, which thinned the blood; that his patient did not have any vitality to lose, and that what delicate people need is not decreased vitality, but more blood. He however consented when assured that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla was directly opposed to the old mistaken blood thinning idea of other sarsaparillas, and that on the contrary by specific vegetable alternatives it stimulated the excretory organs, promoted digestion, and repaired nutrition, hence created new blood and was the very thing for feeble people. The above explains the hundreds of cases in which aged, enfeebled, delicate and run down people, have been built up by Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla after the potash sarsaparillas failed. Its effects are creating a sensation.—S. F. Examiner.

JUNE THE 22^D.

JUNE THE 22 d.

NOTABLE EVENTS THAT HAVE HAPPENED ON THIS DATE.

Gen. Gage in Boston—The Battle of Morat—A Singular Duel in the Air—Napoleon's Second Abdication—St. Alban.

Strengthened by the arrival of fresh troops, under Howe, Burgoyne and Clinton, Gen. Gage, with a total force of 20 regiments, aggregating 10,000 men, proclaimed martial law in Boston
June 22, 1775. He promised a full pardon to all rebels who would submit to the royal authority, excepting Samuel Adams and John Hancock, to whom no pardon would be granted.

THE BATTLE OF MORAT.

On the 22d of June, 1476, was fought at Morat, in Switzerland, one of the most sanguinary battles on record. Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, the last of a series of independent princes, with a territory which now forms Eastern France, and who had determined to humble the Swiss, was among the slain. Up to the year 1475, he was an object of terror to the astute Louis XI. of France, who had reason to dread that the Duke would himself master of Provence, and himself would not be able to have intercourse with the rest of Europe, except by the enemy's permission. Charles was in a fair way of realizing his ambition, when the fatal quarrel with the Swiss put an end to his hopes. Having seized the town of Granson, Charles imprudently advanced to meet the Swiss at the bottom of their own mountains, carrying with him all the arms and accoutrements which he had collected from other articles which he used at home. A singular panic seized the mass of his army, and with little loss the Swiss gained an immense amount of booty. In April, 1476, after a defeat, the Duke raised another force of 30,000, and met the Swiss near the Lake of Morat, where he encountered another crushing reverse. But defeat did not prevent him from continuing in the war until he met his death at the battle of Nancy, January, 1477. The fall of the house of Burgundy was complete, and Louis XI. was delivered from fear.

AN AERIAL DUEL.

Perhaps the most singular duel ever fought occurred June 22, 1808. M. de Grandpre and M. le Piqueau had a quarrel growing out of a jealousy concerning a lady engaged in the imperial opera, one Mlle. TREVET. They agreed to bestow her smiles on the survivor. The duellists were to fight in the air. Two balloons were constructed, exactly alike, and the two rivals entered them respectively. They alighted in the garden of the Tuilleries amidst an immense concourse of people. The contestants were to fire, not at each other, but at the balloon. As the wind was moderate, the balloons remained at their usual distance, about one hundred eighty yards. When about half a mile above the surface of the earth, a preconcerted signal for firing was given. M. le Pique fired first, but his shot was so wide of the mark that he sent a ball through Pique's balloon, which collapsed and the ear descended with a crash. Pique and his second were dashed to pieces. De Grandpre continued his descent triumphantly, and terminated his aerial voyage at a distance of seven leagues from Paris.

NAPOLEON I executed his second abdication of the crown June 22, 1815. He declared that he had begun the war to sustain the national independence with the hope of success. Circumstances, however, had changed, and he was compelled to offer himself as a sacrifice to the enemies of France. His political life was over, and he was leaving his title Emperor of the French, under the title of Napoleon II. But he soon realized that he was abdicating not for his son, but for Louis XVIII., and perceived that the efforts to perpetuate the dynasty would be fruitless. All the hostility of Europe and of the royalists centered upon Bonaparte. Louis XVIII. declared a l'ghent: "Why when the great mark of revolution is removed from Bonaparte, the people are clear of course that if Bonaparte returns to the Island of Elba, it will be begun afresh; but, when he is finished, revolutions will be finished too." Arguments failed to convince him that there were other things to be feared besides Bonaparte. Experience was needed to convince him of the instability of the new throne. Some years later, on receiving a minister in his room, he said as he pointed to his bed: "My brother will not die in that bed." Among those sovereigns who had immediately preceded him, as well as those who were soon to second him on the throne, Louis XVIII. was the only one to die peacefully in his palace.

ST. ALBAN, who occupies this place in the ecclesiastical calendar, has the honor of being regarded as the first British martyr. The bloody persecution of Diocletian, which raged in other parts of the Roman Empire with such terrible fury that the author of it declared Christians to be exterminated, was kept back from this island by Constantius, who ruled these provinces with almost regal authority. But some few are alleged to have suffered, and among these St. Alban was first. He Amphibius, who is said to have converted him, and when he could conceal him no longer, he assisted his escape by changing clothes with him. For this act Alban was brought before the Governor, condemned and beheaded. The execution took place at Vreulan, which was named St. Albans in his honor.
